

Energy Test Study Guide

Test date _____

- When energy is converted, what is usually produced?
- What is the energy of motion?
- What is the energy transformation for:
 - burning wood
 - light bulb starting to glow
 - food heated in an oven
 - a ball rolling down a hill
 - a person lifting a weight
- What are the two general types of energy?
- Be able to recognize examples for each type of energy.
- Be able to recognize definitions for all types of energy.
- Be able to recognize the definition for energy and the Law of Conservation.
- Know that energy flows from warmer to cooler objects.
- Study page _____ of your three-clasp folder the most.

Energy Test Study Guide

Test date _____

- When energy is converted, what is usually produced?
- What is the energy of motion?
- What is the energy transformation for:
 - burning wood
 - light bulb starting to glow
 - food heated in an oven
 - a ball rolling down a hill
 - a person lifting a weight
- What are the two general types of energy?
- Be able to recognize examples for each type of energy.
- Be able to recognize definitions for all types of energy.
- Be able to recognize the definition for energy and the Law of Conservation.
- Know that energy flows from warmer to cooler objects.
- Study page _____ of your three-clasp folder the most.

